ASHAMED OF HIS STATE,

Congressman Moore, of Tennessee, is ashamed of his State. He finds that the seed of repudiation is bringing forth its legitimate fruit. The natural and unavoidable result of that pernicious political philosophy and moral obliquity, which leads a people to even contemplate repudiation without blushing, is now being realized. When Mr. Moore's amendment shall l placed before the people it will be found no simple question. While it must be admitted that the end sought is a just one, James Stanley died suddenly Sunday evening at the question as to the means to be employed to attain it is a problem full of difficulties. ANNUAL MEETING .- The annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held on Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church. Rev. A. J. Hanson presided. After devotional exercises Mr. Hanson read his report as President for the past year, giving in detail the work of the Association, gave the result of the year as very encouraging. The reading-room, which has been supplied by generous donations with several leading daily newspapers, besides quite a list of valuable books, magazines, religious and scientific journals, etc., has been well pa-tronized, andamong the attendants a large number of poor and homeless men, who have frequently and warmly expressed their grati-tute for a place thus afforded the poor and strangers to spend an hour or evening in a cheerful room, away from the temptations of strong drink. The meetings for the year have been well atteaded, and the financial necessities for the work met by the payments of members and The course of free lectures given through the aid of funds transferred to the Lecture Committee by the Sacramento Educational Institute and the Literary Institute, are largely attended and popular. The General Secretary, S. D. Fuller, gave an interesting report of the meetings, attendance, etc., during the past ten months. Addresses were made by J. R. Watson, Rev. C. McKelvey and W. S. Passett, to which close attention was given. Mr. Watson warmly indersed the establishing and maintenance of reading rooms for young men and others away from homes, or where their leisure hours may be spent. He said that a large number have been established and carried on for the benefit of employes and others at principal points on the Central and Southern Pacific Railroads, the results and influence of which have been most satisfactory and encouraging.
